Bumper Crop in Sight C. P. R. Rushing Ahead With Round-House

The work of enlarging the yards is being pushed along rapidly and it is obviously the intention of the company to have everything in readiness for handling the big crop this fall.

Latest reports rumour that the round-house is to be equipped with electric power and that the power is to be generaled by a special unit at the dam.

The depot will be the last job undertaken and will when completed present an entirely new appear-

Keeping the Straw on the Move

WHEN we designed the Runsley Ideal thresher we knew trouble in threshing always has been [bunching, winding of the cylinder, choking up. We knew that anything that impedes the flow of straw prevents perfect threshing. So we designed the Ideal on the principle of a steady even flow of straw through the methine—from the time it enters at the cylinder until, free of all the grain, it leaves the machine through the methical.

Follow the straw through an Ideal. Notice, the size and weight of the cylinder and the relative position of the grates,—that in the Ideal the grates are not placed half way up around the cylinder but right behind and beneath where they allow the cylinder to relieve itself of the straw at the most natural point—the bottom—before the cylinder starts on its upward turn.

Then see how that patented Ideal traveling rake works taking the straw from the cylinder and delivering it to t straw rack in that same steady even flow—all the while separting the grain from the straw broause the rake is slatted.

g the grain from the staw because the rake is slatted. You'll find the Ideal straw rack different from others— tead of relying upon slanking alone there are sets of lifting gers that tear the straw open—rake it—best if from beneath. And to guarantee perfect cleaning there is a chaffer in the anning shore as well as in the grain pan—no overloaded shore anning shore as well as in the grain pan—no overloaded shore the excess of the big capacity for which every Ideal is noted.

We have a catalog for you that tells everything about the Ideal, which is built in five sizes, 22×36 , 28×44 , 28×48 , 82×52 and 36×60 .
